The SMITH COLLEGE
YEAR BOOK

1929

DEDICATION

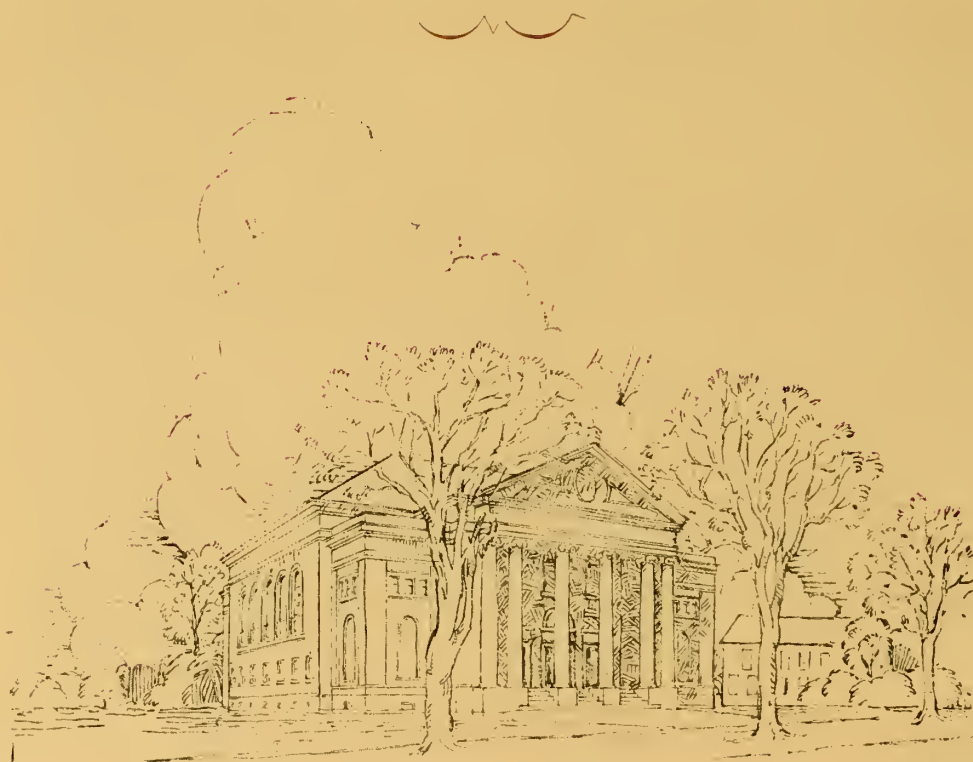

TO IRVING FRANCIS WOOD

who has developed the religious thought of the college with the creative sympathy of a true leader.

FOREWORD

To keep alive the memory of these years for ourselves and for our friends,
we have made this record

NONSENSE

*"L*ORD, I do fear

Thou'st made the world too beautiful this year.

My soul is all but out of me — let fall

No burning leaf: prithee let no bird call."

Edna St. Vincent Millay

ADMINISTRATION

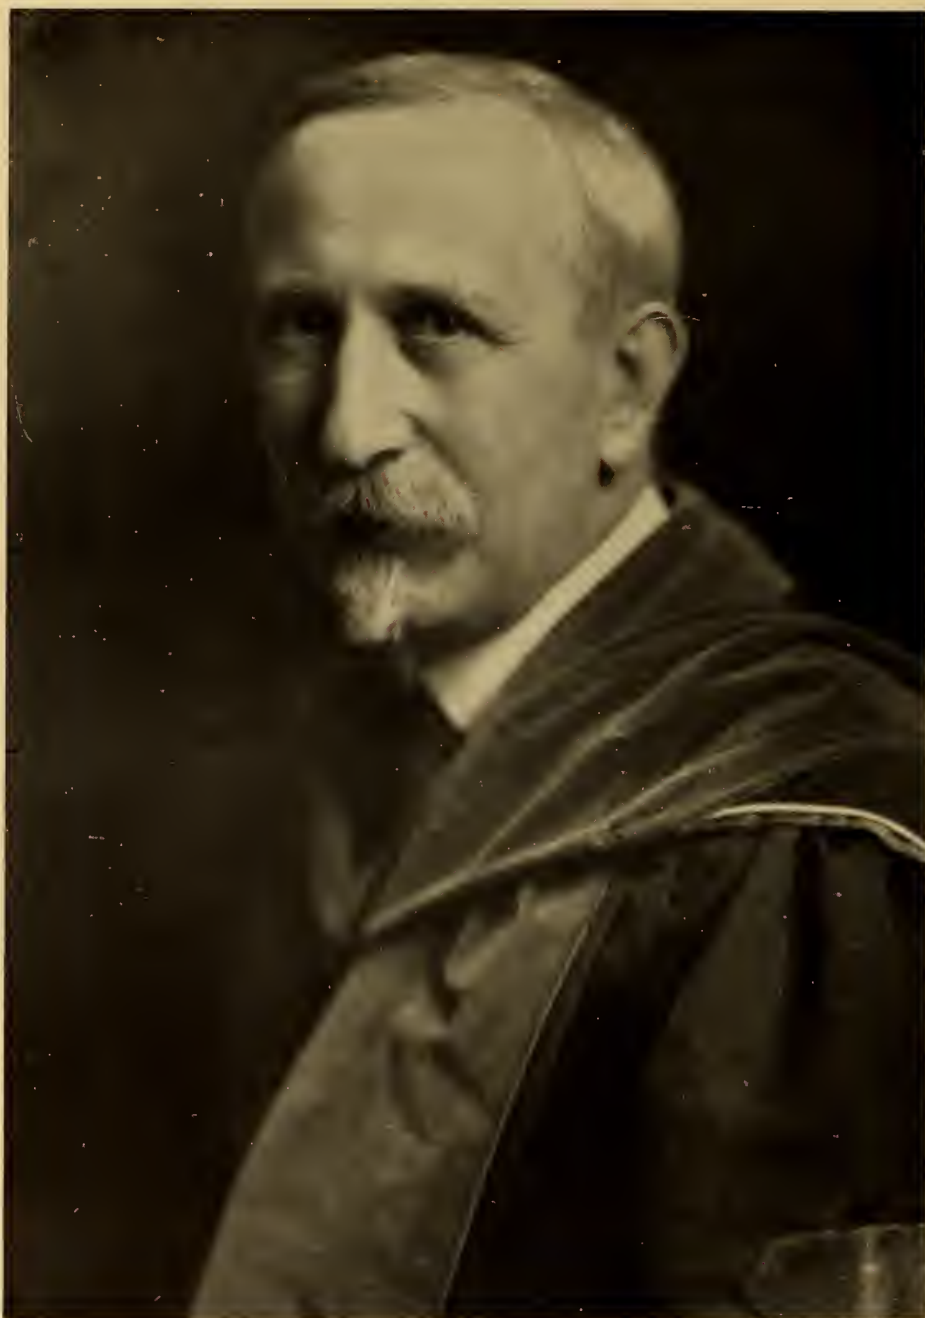

Miss Barbour

OF COURSE, we could never begin to tell all she has done for us. For one thing, it is too personal a matter, since she has been so much a part of us. It has been four years now, and we wish it were four years more; in fact, four years ago we wished it could be eight—or more than eight. But then we were so dazed by our good fortune in having her at all that we forgot to give thanks to the Powers that be. And now we are so dazed at the thought of not having her—oh, when were four years ever so short!

We find it impossible to catalog what she has done; we dislike such balancing and evaluating. But if we were asked to name her greatest contribution—too cold a word really—we should sigh and say, “Advice.” And we should recall class meetings, majors, conferences, office-hours, course cards, petitions—a hopeless maze to which she alone knew the solution. When we consider how many majors she has launched and how many she has put up for repairs—often with difficult change of the entire cargo—then we realize our indebtedness. She has brought about our whole evolution, from the ignoble chaos of our Freshman ignorance to our present state, criticism of which we leave to her.

She has struck a nice balance—no threatening, no flattery, no useless advice. We appreciate her skill—she has kept us from crying over our failures and from boasting about our successes.

The wonder lies in the fact that advice, which would have meant a severance or a tension in any other case, has here brought intimacy. That is, it has formed a link—not a cold, tangible link, but an unseen, living one. And all that is the result of the very careful and personal attention she has given to all our interests so that we are thanking her both for what she has given us and the manner in which she has given it.

Class History

THE fog in which we wandered Freshman year lifted long ago. Now we are at home in our College world—we see through the faculty; we sometimes even pretend to understand the workings of the Registrar's office, and scorched ironing board and burned hash no longer confuse us on Tuesday mornings. Four years ago these things were new to us—rather terrifying when we stopped to think about them—but most of the time unnoticed in the dense fog.

The first days were hazy. We were too new ourselves to appreciate the newly introduced "free cut" system. Dr. Blake gave us excellent advice, but we took to cutting classes as easily as if we had done it all our lives. Occasional bright spots punctuated the misty paragraphs—the Intelligence Test glared at us, a nightmare of algebra and musical terms and suppressed giggles; Mountain Day shone blue and amber upon us, at the top of the Holyoke Range, with a windy view and ginger ale; Freshman Frolic blazed with lights and crowds and our own hallowed Sophomore who brought us home full of fudge sandwich. Then came our first Class meeting, with a disorganized group of preparatory school representatives trying to become a unity. We were more bewildered than ever as a dinosaur and a class motto retired with us into the fog.

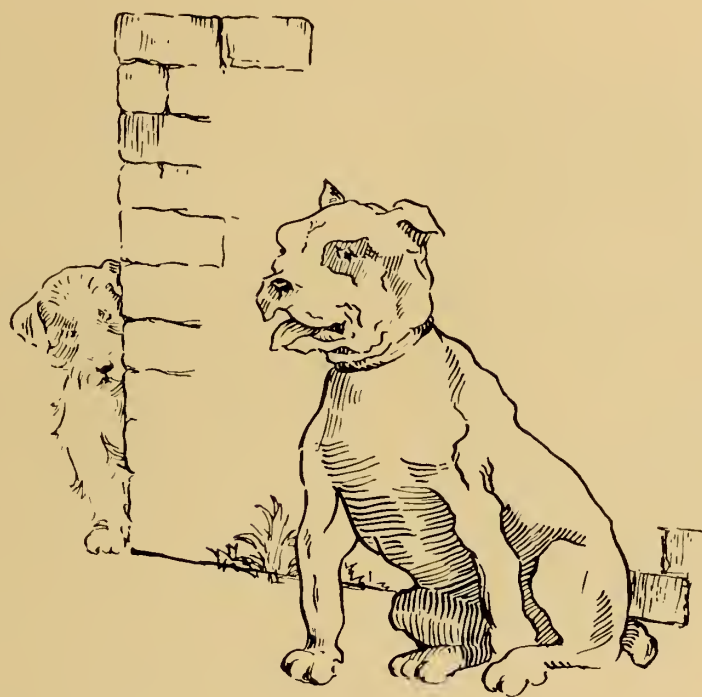

The twinkling lights of Sophomore Carnival soon brightened the scene, with the gliding of many skates to the rhythm of the Amherst Serenaders, and the warmth of hot tomato soup. Soup takes us on to mid-years, when we crammed for the first time in our lives, and marvelled at upperclassmen who began to catch up on the movies. Rally Day brought us a breath-taking moment of being really collegiate without being condemned, then the pendulum swung, but the excitement held for our first Spring Dance week-end.

After a fleeting vacation we found the fog was lifting to reveal grass cops, Senior cars, English prints and Paradise. Choir competition brought us triumph, then came finals, with a history outline underneath a tree, and before we had time to look around at the once misty campus, we were leaving the Northampton station, our ears still ringing with the War Cry of all House Mothers in June—"Nothing must be left in the closets!"

Class History

WE seemed to have been Sophomores always. Our apprenticeship was behind us, and we were wise in the ways of things. Head and shoulders above the mist, we alternately helped and frightened the Class of 1930, and felt delightfully wicked when President Neilson warned them to beware of us. He had given the same warning about 1928, and would doubtless keep on giving it so long as Freshmen followed Sophomores into Smith, but we were suddenly conscious of ourselves as a Class. WE sat downstairs in chapel, in spite of our preference for the balcony; WE took Freshmen to Frolic and introduced them to the Very Best People (though this sometimes took a lot of nerve); WE ran Carnival; WE knew the best tea-room; WE worked ourselves into a panic over mid-years quite happily, knowing they wouldn't be fatal; WE heard Kreisler a second time; WE helped at Junior Prom, where some of our number rose above the rank of assistant. It was a year of Tremendous Importance in which very little was really accomplished.

The seven-night rule had come into Northampton with us this year, to curb our growing interest in near-by colleges. This was a direct affront at the time, but we can see from an impersonal distance that it saved our Smith lives. So the year flew by—seven exclamation points in the first semester, seven in the second (though “trench-mouth” gave us twelve) and Commencement had arrived.

Never had the interests of any group been so carefully guarded as were those of Sophomore Push Committee. Seniors were worried, Junior Ushers were sad, and Parents were meekly obedient and bewildered. We alone loved that June week-end, busy and important till the last Senior gown had been collected. Then once more we went through the agony of breaking up housekeeping. Once more we bought moth balls at Niquette's and borrowed a hammer from the girl across the hall. Once more we packed ourselves and our hatboxes into a groaning taxi and left for home. We seemed to have entered College but a few weeks before, yet our second year was over!

Class History

WE do not like to boast. As a Class, we are retiring by nature, and we have always kept our places with great propriety, nor can the Seniors complain that we have ever usurped the first eight rows in chapel (except on state occasions), and we have always walked humbly before the mighty (i. e. said Seniors). But this year, despite all our efforts to remain inconspicuous, we were forced into prominence.

The first term passed quietly, but that was because we were saving all our efforts for later. Then came Rally Day. Was the Ode to be delivered this year or not? That was the vital question. For there had been no Rally Day Ode the year previous. Were we too to suffer oblivion on this day of days? Could not one among us rise to the ranks of the immortals and commemorate this day in fitting poetry? We held our collected breaths and waited. And then—surprise—delight—relief! One among us had qualified—had passed the President's high standard, and on February twenty-second, Polly Palfrey rose to give the customary Ode, while her classmates silently exulted and the whole College applauded. We felt we had triumphed, and if we cast sly glances at the Seniors now and then, it was with malice toward none of them, but with charity toward all.

Then in the latter part of May came Prom! With what hopes, what fears, we had anticipated this great event, ever since Freshman year! At first timidly, then with growing sense of assurance, we approached it. With Nancy Miller as Chairman, we felt capable of anything, and our confidence proved to be not without grounds.

Promises of certain people to come to Prom had been extracted years before, or the previous summer, or even the preceding week-end. Prom-dresses had been the main topic of conversation since October. There was apprehension in our midst; the exhibits welcomed scores of desperate maidens. Telegrams and specials between Hamp and the outside world brought consternation to the Western Union and the Post Office alike. Cars were at a premium; reservations were made and cancelled with alarming indecision. Finally all was in readiness! A week's study of the skies predicted pleasant weather for the week-end. And the College settled back to watch the Juniors making whoopee.

If we do say so ourselves, we looked beautiful (nor are we alone in this opinion). Each of us was so entrancing, and deported herself with such grace and dignity, that even the faculty were moved to admiration, and one of them extolled our charms to such a degree that only the Seniors, with reminiscences of their Prom, could keep our modesty within bounds. Then—sic transit gloria mundis!—like Cinderella, we were whisked back to the work-a-day world; we were again eager maidens in the pursuit of learning, for the end of the week brought final exams, with only three days in which to cram the knowledge of the semester into our giddy minds.

But we survived the ordeal and even managed to look a little self-deprecating after our last exam, as a Senior pinned us and presented us with a corsage, which meant that we had reached the final rung of the ladder. We were now Seniors in all but—well, all but leading out of chapel. And as they sang their last song in June and abdicated the Steps in our favor, we took their places almost reluctantly, knowing that never again should we possess the same spirit of irresponsible joy which had been ours all year. We were now to be grave and dignified, as befitted a Class to be emulated by the future Freshmen. But whether we have succeeded in this attitude of solemnity, which is the characteristic of all "grave, old Seniors" is not for us to say. We are a modest Class.

The Commemoration Ode

MARGARET PALFREY

I

Yes, we have built a monument for you,
A shaft—a white flame chiseled in the sky,
Rising from your white city—tipped with blue.
Years have not clouded it, nor winds, nor high
Sun thinned its beauty in our careless land.
Your name has lent a richness to our tongue,
Your shadow warmed us; bracing us, your hand
Is living strength. We who are over young
Turn with our questions to your mellow age,
Hear the slow cadence of your words, explore
Pages half blurred beneath a candle flame.
We cannot let you sleep; you fill our stage,
Our books, our thoughts, our life. We ask no more
To justify a Nation than your name.

II

We ask no more? On the Potomac where
High lawns rise gently, a Virginia sun
Crosses the framework of your house, and there
Each day move wistful footsteps, one by one—
Ever more slowly, wondering at the touch
Of quiet wind along the golden grass.
We cannot leave you there. Our need is such
That we must drag your name from sleep, to pass
Into a glaring world you would not know;
Into the crash of cities, turning wheels;
A fettered sea; a throbbing steel-winged sky;
Where words and thoughts are shrill—only the low
Continued sob of war unchanged, that steals
Along our trail, a voice that will not die.

III

So we have built a monument for you,
Shrouded in winds and purified with rain.
Faithfully we have watched it, kept it new
To satisfy our pleasure or our pain.
We have enriched ourselves at your expense,
We have grown older through your weary age,
Wise through your wisdom; even in defense
Of you we reap immortal heritage.
For you belong to us: in your wide sleep
Surely you will forgive our selfishness
That holds your name close to a tarnished land.
For winds shall come, and silence fold as deep
About our time as yours. Forgetfulness.
Will come, and death: but your white shaft will stand.

Class History

ONCE more, and for the last time, we review our past and write the final annals of 1929. Henceforth, 1929 is only a vague number with no significance attached to it, and our history in the future cannot be written as one composite document, but only as 437 separate accounts.

This year has been for us a full one, and hence, a memorable one. Inaugurating the College year with the presidential campaign, politics swept the campus from Belmont to the new Dorms, leaving chaos, heated argument, and fierce combat in its wake. Those of us who had reached our majority took even a more intense interest in proceedings and eagerly signed our absentee ballots, and then gloated over our unfortunate opponents deprived of this privilege through insufficient age. Political clubs were formed, roommate was divided against roommate, mass meetings and parades invaded the sanctity of our campus. Not even after the actual election was over did the feeling subside, for belated eulogies and heated defamations were heard for many a day after.

In the fall, we won the interclass hockey tournament, but we waited until Thanksgiving before emerging into real publicity. At that time Aggie Rodgers qualified for the All-American Hockey Team, and went to Philadelphia to play in a game against the English. The fact that the Americans were beaten detracted in no wise from Aggie's accomplishment and her ovation at the station upon her return was almost what the press reported it.

Slightly wearied by post-vacation depression and the mid-year Panic, we eagerly welcomed Rally Day. And even if it did come on a Friday, we are glad we spent the week-end here, for if we never see anything else in our life, we will be content having seen Pat Patterson as Captain Neilson, conducting morning prayers on the "S. S. Sophia!"

Only the more valorous of us fussed Prom this year. The great majority preferred to remain quietly on the sidelines, nursing our rheumatic joints, and watching the Juniors play merrily with their Prom guests. Sometimes, their pretty capers brought a tear to our old, dim eyes, as we recalled a similar scene in which we had participated last year. But, realizing that such frivolities were not meant for us, we wandered sadly away, leaving the young things to amuse each other.

Then came Spring—real Spring, when we donned our caps and gowns and sang sentimental songs on the steps of Studes. The campus became alive with us, black-robed, mortar-boarded beings, grave and intent as befitted serious Seniors who had a mission in life (i. e. Diploma, June 18th).

And true to tradition, despite all we have said to the contrary, we have become sentimental Seniors. Our past year is strewn with milestones, both gay and sad, with a little melancholy note lurking behind even the gay ones. Our last mid-years, our last Spring-Dance, our last vacation, our last exam, and then—our last Step-Sing! Perhaps this is the most impressive ceremonial of all, when, in caps and gowns, we sing our farewell song to the College, and gravely descend the steps which we reluctantly relinquish to the Juniors. Tradition demands it—and we must step aside to make room for the younger generation! 1929 has passed on.

As we write the last words in these pages and close the history of our brief life here, it seems natural that we should end it with the song that is in our hearts as we perform our last duties, attend our last classes, and witness our last chapel. Its familiar air will continue to haunt us even when we are gone and others are singing it on warm, lazy spring evenings:

"Sun is sinking in the west, shadows longer grow
O'er the campus that we love, clouds are drifting slow.
You will see the scenes we love still in future Mays.
But the sun is setting fast on our College days."

We bring you ivy, walls; here at your feet
Softly we lay a fragrant shining plume;
Under these elms, these hills, this bit of sky,
In your deep earth we leave our dreams to bloom.

Dreams of young ivy, silver in the wind,
Climbing strong-fingered roots, alive, sun-caught;
Old ivy, shrouded, matching green and gold,
Heavy with sleep, mysterious in thought.

You quiet walls in this New England town,
We who have known you find no words to say
How rich we are, the outer world how poor:
We bring you ivy and our dreams today.

We're getting old; we sentimentalize.
You know, regrets! as when alumnae say,
"O ivy-covered walls! O perfect skies
On Mountain Day!" And now we're just that way.

We thought of caps and gowns and all the rest.
We thought of all we had to lose and knew
(Although before we never would have guessed!)
That nothing could be worse than losing you.

But even worse than that—(a tear begins?
Don't cry; it's hard, and yet you must be told.)
You're losing us! But still you have our pins;
Now take the rest we leave, and be consoled. —E. R.

In the matter of family relations
We can fill almost all situations,
For we're Mothers of New Generations,
And by process of rejuvenations
We are some of us granddaughters, too.

We've been wives in a marriage scholastic,
For in spite of our courses gymnastic,
All our week-ends so far from elastic,
And our cutting professors bombastic,
We've been happily wedded to work.

Though in numerous roles so proficient,
And in secrets domestic omniscient,
We are not in ourselves quite sufficient:
For we felt we were sadly deficient,
Till we found we had sisters in you.

We can say with a kind condescendence
We are glad to have lost independence,
While your stock makes a steady ascendance
And we're glad to have you for descendants
For it might have been somebody else!

We sang to you on Rally Day.
Will you forget the tune?

And all the time we're whispering
—A little song let fall—
So faint—almost a lullabye,
O, youngest ones of all!

For now we leave you motherless,
And motherlike we pray
That you will keep the path we've set
And never go astray.

We sang to you at Frolic.

Dramatics

DRAMATICS this year depended largely on Workshop activity, since the usual fall and spring productions of the Association were omitted. But Workshop stood the strain remarkably well.

Early in November, it gave two performances of Carlo Goldoni's The Servant of Two Masters, adapted from the Italian by Max Reinhardt, translated by Professor Samuel A. Eliot, Jr., and produced in the Reinhardt manner as he had seen it done abroad. Professor Oliver W. Larkin, typifying the Reinhardt restless activity, played the part of the servant, "Pantalone," with such energy, grace, and understanding as to carry away the performance. Mrs. Larkin made a pert maid, the adequate feminine foil for "Pantalone." And Marjorie Streit, in the part of "Beatrice" masquerading as her brother, succeeded in the difficult task of appearing both appealingly feminine and yet elegantly masculine. The scenery, consisting simply of screens supported by a few glorified and unashamed stage-hands, the costumes, of the Columbine sort but with modern accents, and the general comic appreciation of the cast—all combined to make a unified production.

A Christmas Miracle Play, also one of Professor Eliot's adaptations for little theaters, made use of some new material—that is to say, Freshmen. A unique staging technique brought into use all corners of the stage by the manipulation of small curtains. The scenery, purposely simple, even crude, very successfully created the effect of the old Miracle plays.

Immediately before Christmas vacation, an unofficial production of The Mikado was given for the benefit of the Stage Fund. Frederica Cohen, Arnold Dana, Elizabeth Patterson, Nancy Hamilton, and Elizabeth Jean Parker led the cast in interpreting sympathetically the old Gilbert and Sullivan classic, with just the correct blend of song and jest. Particular commendation goes to Nancy Hamilton for her careful and tireless directing.

Deva's Girdle, adapted by Professor Eliot from the Burmese, saw two performances, in January and again in February. Although the effect desired, and achieved, was that of a spectacle, still praise is due to the individual performances of Anne Basinger as "The Prince Charming" and Sylvia D'Lugasch as "The Astrologer." The novel lighting effects accentuated the tone of the whole—a mysterious exoticism.

In February, the faculty revived Gilbert and Sullivan's Trial by Jury. In spite of the carefully circulated rumors of their astounding success in the same opera in 1923, the College could not believe such a riotous, even raucous, performance possible. Although much of the hysteric applause may have been due simply to the shock of seeing scholarly heads, often bald, encircled with delicate pink wreaths, still the performance was of intrinsic excellence. It would be difficult to say who enjoyed it more—the audience or the actors! Almost the entire opera was immediately repeated, by boisterous request.

Dramatics—Continued

The customary adaptations by members of Professor Eliot's playwrighting class were On Trial, adapted by Anne Basinger from Chekhov, and A Family Affair, adapted by Louise Seaman from Rose Macauley's Daisy and Daphne. Although one was in black and grey, and the other in red and white, both met with appreciation from the audience—appreciation of the adaptors as well as of the actors.

It is not well to consider the comfort of the body in speaking of the intellectual judgment of art, but the new equipment in the Students' Building—that is, of course, the new improved seats—has without doubt influenced this year's audiences and, in natural consequence, the actors and directors as well. Drama has come before the eyes of the college in a fitting manner.

The year has also witnessed a surprising advance in the technique of lighting and scenery—an advance which is the ideal recommendation for the new stage. The possibilities for effective staging have been only touched upon; there is much ahead. In fact, if the advance continues proportionately, one hesitates to consider the future.

Last Step Song, Junior Year

Words by POLLY PALFREY

Music by HERMION WHEATON

Upon our new-found threshold
We stand with solemn pride;
The doors we longed to open
At last are swinging wide;
The magic light of evening
Has touched the steps we know,
Their greyness turned to silver,
A promise in its glow.

Though winds enshroud the voices
That sang about us here,
Though suns forget the faces,
That warmed us through the year,
Through wind and hail and snowstorms
And rains that gleam and pass,
Still bright remain before us
Their shadows on the grass.

Shining steps, we stand together
At the closing of this day;
They who lead and we who follow
Linger here upon our way.
Shining steps, while we protect you,
We shall stand with heads on high;
Then pass on as those before us,
Underneath the sunset sky.

Tune: "Fiji Honeymoon"

You take a Smith girl in the springtime,
In the merry month of June,
With an Amherst soph or senior
Underneath a big round moon;
You walk them once around old Paradise,
With a soda at Plym Inn;
There you have a Romance budding
And your troubles just begin.

Tune: "I Love My Baby"

I love my Hygiene,
I go merrily
And find a corner
Where no one can see,
Then since I've read in that treatise by Stiles,
We must have sleep to endure all our trials,
In cramped position and breathing bad air,
My weary tissues I try to repair.
I know real fatigue from the pseudo, you see;
I love my Hygiene, it's restful to me.

1929 Songs—Continued

Tune: "Mine All Mine"

Said one fair roommate to another,
 "I've something sad to tell you;
 Asking Bill to Prom was only a blunder;
 I've no bid to Yale; now what'll I do?"

"O, I'm simply livid, dearie,
 In a state to gargle goo.
 I'd sniffle soup
 I dribble and droop.
 I mean I actually do.

"For I think it's simply noxious
 And perverted, too, don't you?
 I'd slaughter a goat
 I flounder and float.
 I mean I actually do.

"I'd almost nibble noodles—
 Just between us two, my dear;
 I'm feeling swizzled—
 I could wring out a tear
 O, I'd chortle whortle-berries
 And pickled peanuts, too.
 I'm all of a pother.
 I feel hot and bothered.
 I mean I actually do!"

Tune: "Stumbling"

Heaving forth a sigh,
 Wishing you could fly,
 Would that home were by
 The Calvin;
 Running home at night,
 Looking for the light
 Hoping clocks are right.
 The movie wasn't through
 But then what could you do?
 When clocks are telling you
 That it was time
 For ten to chime.
 As we hurried by Niquette's
 Ten had not struck yet.
 Two minutes were left to get there.
 Dash across the lawn,
 Half the time was gone.
 Why can't the movies finish?
 So we can have a minute more
 To get in the door,
 Rushing home at ten.

Tune: "The Best Things in Life Are Free"

Seniors, you are growing old!
 Are we growing old like you?
 You're rheumatic, we are told,
 And we feel the weather, too.
 We used to laugh as we Ran through the rain, now we
 Quake at the mud;
 It chills our blood.
 O Seniors, you are growing old.
 Are we growing old like you?

Seniors, you are growing old.
 Your mail now is just a bill.
 And you study, we are told.
 Your blue card you never fill.
 Stairs you can climb
 One step at a time.
 Stahlberg complains
 His work's in vain!
 O Seniors, you are growing old.
 Are we growing old like you?

June is not so far away.
 Next year you will all have flown;
 Without you how can we stay;
 Without you we'll feel alone.
 You have grown dear,
 Closer each year.
 Mem'ries will last
 When years have passed.
 Senior Class, if you grow old,
 Please let us grow old with you.

Tune: "I Wonder Where My Baby Is Tonight"

I wonder why the stars come out at night!
 I would that there were not a one in sight!
 I wish I had the nerve
 To cut and not observe.
 I'm going to the movies just for spite!
 I don't see why the stars come out at night.
 To me, it doesn't seem exactly right.
 It's pretty tough, you see,
 To take Astronomy.
 I wish the stars would cease to be so bright!

1930 Songs

BARBARA HALL
Song Leader

Tune: "Baby Sister Blues"

We've got those Baby Sister Blues
Oh Golly!
Can't we please fuss, too
Oh Golly!
Just down to Yale to find a beau
Things at Hamp are, oh so slow
Now, sister class, you know it's true
We'll bet when you were Sophomores, too
There wasn't much you didn't do
You couldn't fool us
You couldn't fool us
Because we know
We're just the mean age
Oh! that in between age
Just too old for a Deerfield dance
For Dartmouth Proms, there's not a chance
Oh, sister class, you know it's true
We'll bet when you were Sophomores, too
You had those Baby Sister Blues.

Tune: "Abdul a Bubulami"

When our College was new
And its inmates were few
They came from the towns round about
But its charms became known
And our College has grown
With many recruits from without.

Though we had civic pride
For Northampton we sighed
And boarded a train to our goal
Then the Boston and Maine
Puffed away in great pain
To get there in time for the role.

From Chicago and Chester and Chicopee Falls
And Concord and Kalamazoo
And Cambridge and Cleveland and Cocanut Grove
And Kensha and Kalumet too.

But the fact we are here
Makes it seem pretty clear
That allurements in names is a myth—
We forfeit our fame
Crying "What's in a name!"
And change our addresses to Smith.

Tune: "Second-hand Love"

Everybody wants some Senior's second-hand Ford,
When you are bored,
Take to a Ford.

I have no drag, I never ride in a Ford;
All by myself. I'm so lonely.
Nobody ever offers transit to me
When I am walking abroad—
But maybe someday my ship will come in,
And I'll ride in a second-hand Ford!

Tune: "Rain Wreck from Georgia Tech"

If your date's the bunk,
Be nonchalant;
Light a Murad, and don't you cry.
Amherst appeals are like Chesterfields:
They're mild, but they satisfy.
And so with him go strolling
Around Paradise if you like.
And if you get home by ten o'clock
We'll call it a Lucky Strike.

1931 Songs

HELEN CONNOLLY
Song Leader

Tune: "Together"

Seniors, we've been together,
Just one short year together,
But never wonder whether
We will think of you
And remember, too.
Nights that we've spent together
Strengthening ties
Under twilight skies
Here 'round these steps—together.

Now we are here together.
'Tis our last time together,
But as we part remember
You will find us here,
When you come each year,
And as Alums together
We will come back together.
Mem'ries will throng
Of these nights spent in song
Here 'round these steps—together.

Tune: "'S Wonderful"

You're in a fog,
You're all agog,
You'd give your hat,
we know,
You're nervous wrecks,
You'd break your necks,
To see the animal show.
Because we're head and shoulders
Above all you high-hat olders,
We choose giraffe.
Now give a laff—
Because he's not so slow.

Tune: "The Varsity Drag"

You are the last we are the now.
You are the past we are the wow.
Don't you wish that you were Freshmen now!?
Sooner than soon, Junetime is here.
Quicker than quick ends your career
We as Freshmen
Take your farewell bow
We will be true always to you
Whether you're here or away.
Three years more we will deplore
When the Freshmen say—
"Noble Seniors now must depart
Soon they will start with saddened heart."
We will wish that
We were Freshmen again.

Tune: "Moonlight and Roses"

Step sings at twilight
Bring courage to many a heart.
Now we dare tell you,
O Seniors, e'er you depart
That all the mem'ries
Of you and of all you've done
Will help and guide us in all years to come.

Now we're together
Your praises you now must hear.
You've been our model
Throughout all this hard first year.
Then when you've parted,
Are treading strange pathways and new,
We will be loyal, dear Seniors, to you.

ELLEN HESS
Song Leader

1932 Song

Tune: "Anything Your Heart Desires"

Your clothes, your cars, your marks are everything
That all the Freshmen's hearts desire.
Your dates, your Proms, your men are everything
That any Freshman could require.
You sit on Paradise and catch Flu,
Without a care for the paper that's due;
If we could dance and fuss as much as you
Just to be Seniors we'd desire.

The mailman comes with specials all for you
But we get only postcards few.
While Profs all smile at you for cutting class,
Our names to Registrar's they pass.
We Freshmen know what you have been through,
You've had your flunking notices too;
You've laughed and lived and loved with us this fall,
And that is what is best of all.

College Songs

Words by HENRIETTA SPERRY, '10

Music by H. D. SLEEPER

To you, O Alma Mater,
O mother great and true,
From all your loyal children
Comes up the song anew.
Where swings the red sun upward,
Where sinks he down to rest,
Are hearts that backward turning
Still find you first and best.

Chorus

And gladly singing to you always
Our loyal hearts with joy shall fill,
O fairest, fairest Alma Mater,
You hold and claim us still.

You gave us dreams unnumbered,
And life we had not known,
And now, O Alma Mater,
We give you back your own.
For memories, for friendships,
That bless each passing day,
Our toil unsought we render,
Our debt unasked we pay.

Chorus

Fair Smith, our praise to thee we render,
O dearest college halls,
Bright hours that live in mem'ry tender,
Are wing'd within thy walls,
O'er thy walks the elms are bowing,
Alma Mater,
Winds 'mid branches softly blowing,
Ivy 'round thy towers growing,
Alma Mater.

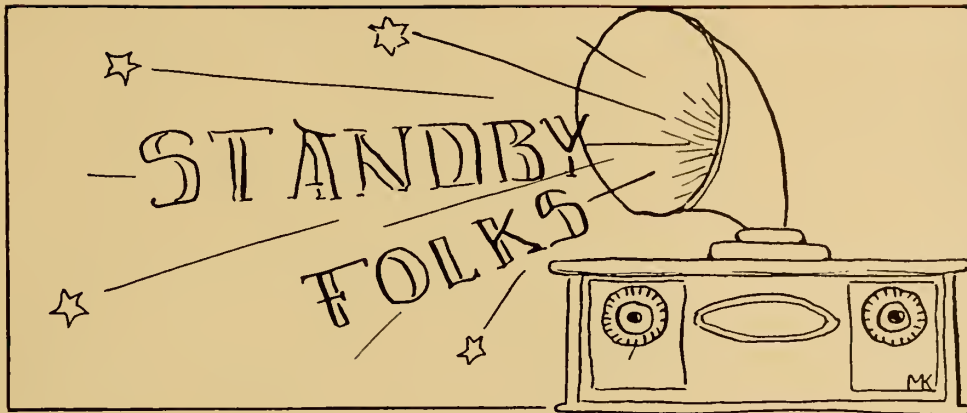

Tho' time may prove the pleasure fleeting,
No hour is spent in vain,
True hearts behold the future meeting,
Our friendship cannot wane.
Of thy care forgetful never,
Alma Mater,
Bound by ties that nought can sever,
Still to thee returning ever,
Alma Mater.

And while the hills with purple shadows
Eternal vigil keep
Above the happy river meadows
In golden haze asleep,
May thy children thee addressing,
Alma Mater,
Still with grateful praise unceasing
Speak in loyal hearts thy blessing,
Alma Mater.

1929

Stand by, folks. Now we're going to have the hour of entertainment broadcast straight from the Collegiate Studios in Northampton. Here we are—"The Campus Calliopes"—Hurly and Burly.

"Hurly & Burly"

Good-evening, everybody. We're going to start in with a little number called "Wanted in the Parlor:"

The bell for me?
My dear, you see,
I'm wanted downstairs
Desperately.

* * *

"Some man has come"

Some man has come?
How very dumb,
He might have let me know,
The hum!

* * *

"Oh cruelty!"

Oh, cruelty!
This cannot be!
My dress dry-cleaned by Maroneey.

* * *

And now here's a new little trick never been broadcast over this station before.
It's called:

From the Outside

"Yes, I think we have a particularly fine group of girls this year."

"I'd like to have you meet one of our Seniors. We're going to miss her next year. Yes, we are."

"Homelike—my girls seem to like it best that way."

"Sixty-four children—just a nice-sized family."

"When I think what they accomplish—well, I don't see how they accomplish everything they do accomplish."

"I just wish you could peep into their rooms—just lovely! Why there isn't another house on this campus—"

"Just a nice-sized family"

You know, Hurly, when I was sitting in my class the other day, I began to think of the cutest little song. How's for my singing it?

Strictly innocent fun, sister, and don't you forget it!

See if you can find anything wrong in this one.

"No, we've never been troubled by that in this house. My girls—"

"That's what I always tell them. If we each do our share—"

"And when we get our new bathrooms—"

"They keep me pretty husy, but I enjoy it."

"They are a nice-looking crowd, aren't they—and so quick to respond—"

"As I say, just one big family—"

* * *

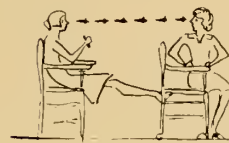

"They keep me pretty busy"

Oh, violent girl, leave off I pray,
Consider my despair.
Indeed, your energetic feet
Are more than I can bear.

But if you heed me not, my friend,
Tomorrow I shall wear,
Some pointed toes and ply them
well
Through your cane-bottomed chair.

* * *

"More than I can bear"

I've got something better, though—"Overheard in Paradise, Saturday Night."

Paradise? Go carefully! Remember our audience!

All right, folks. Here we go—

"Help! I sat down on a whole bush of thorns. I'm killed!"

"Only now and then. They usually stay on their own side, but last year a couple of them escaped and—"

"Darn it, I wish there were a moon. Last week there was a moon but—"

"I'll bet I bear the scar permanently. These rocks—"

"These girls that come down here together on Saturday nights. Well, I admire their spirit—"

"Remember to keep an eye on your watch. If we get in late—"

"Now you'll be able to say you were in Paradise with a Smith girl."

"It's prettiest here in the Spring, why the whole College simply—"

"Girls that come down here together—"

And now, folks, we're going to try to repeat to you one of those midnight conversations you're always hearing about. We hope you like it too, because we're trying to scatter fun and sunshine among our radio audience. This is called "The Point Is—":

"If you think this is the happiest time of our lives, why, you're crazy, that's all!!"

"You know what I've been thinking all evening long? It's not right. No, it isn't. Here we sit as good-looking as we're ever going to be—"

"AS GOOD-LOOKING AS we're ever going to be—"

"Blossoms ready to be plucked—at twelve o'clock at night."

"You can't come down here unless you're with a girl. We're sort of a protection, I guess."

"If you could see it in the daytime, you'd never ask—all the cans and dead animals around. Nobody would even go wading—"

"Did you hear what she just said to him? I couldn't help listening—"

"We're sort of a protection—"

"All of them getting married—"

"Wait a minute. I'm just trying to think. It isn't right being away here studying the whole time. Where is it going to get us? Nobody wants a brainy woman, anyhow. Now take my friends back home—all of them are getting married—"

"And have a couple of kids for consolation—woman's greatest privilege."

"And cute houses with curtains all around, ruffles and ruffles. When you think of this room—"

"College squashes the maternal side."

"One of the unwritten laws of this place—ever think of it? Only brain-children permitted. That's all right. I won't say that it isn't. But this eternal hanging around and waiting business gripes me. I'm always expecting to produce something really decent but the darned things stay in embryonic form for months and months. That's the trouble—ought to be in knee pants going to school already—that sort of thing. We're just always aspiring; that's why we get down."

"Well, maybe. But you know, it's getting so I just dread going home vacations. Everyone has sort of stopped hinting about wedding bells. You know, I think they've really given up hope. Isn't that awful?"

"Awful. We ought to concentrate on snappy comebacks, don't you think? If you have a snappy comeback—not everyone is quick enough—but that's one thing about this place. It keeps you—"

"Well, the point is—this kind of education. It's the best kind, of course, but everything has disadvantages. The faculty want us to learn—well, not the sort of thing that will—. It may sound funny but they don't teach you how—"

"But listen, darling, that's something that's supposed to be purely instinctive—nothing you go and learn—"

"Wouldn't it be a riot if they had a course—How to Catch the Un-suspecting—? None of our girls graduate without finding a suitable mate—?"

"It would be a progressive idea, wouldn't it? That's one thing about this College—"

"You know, I was just thinking—college women do stay young, don't they—there's less chance of falling into a rut—getting dowdy—"

"My dear, stay around some Commencement. Eye-opener! Will I ever forget last June—hats—shoes—for a second I thought I'd fallen into a Lane Bryant's exhibit."

"Oh, do you really think—I'd hate to think—"

"One of those trim, belted models. My dear, you'd be a knockout!"

"But I was thinking—we have stayed young, unaffected, haven't we? You know, I think it's because we're not ashamed of being honest."

"No, he's just the night watchman. Looks like one, I will admit."

"My good silk stockings, too."

"This is better than the movies, isn't it?"

"No, I'd run right away and leave you there. Never pretended to be a life guard, anyway—"

"Just the Nightwatchman"

"No, not tonight. Well—"

* * *

Time's up, Burly. Now I want to sing a cute little number I personally composed. It's entitled "Out of the Tub, into the Telephone Booth." Like the sound of it? So do I!

"No, not to night - well..."

You cannot come to dinner, Jane? That's perfectly all right. We'll try again some other time And choose a better night.

You cannot come to dinner, Jane? I'm simply crushed, you know. But why the devil, telephone? To tell me so?

"All depends on what type you are—" to know there are a few girls like us who appreciate—"

"We may get griped now and then, but after all, it's just four years."

"I always like to sort of think of things—in terms of life. Ten years from now, say, we'll be glad—"

"But if only people—well, they just don't realize, that's all."

"The point is—you have to be in college ynrself—"

"The point is—you have to be honest in this place. That's one big reason why I came—tn he honest."

"But that's our type, you see. It all depends on what type ynu are—"

"We do seem to get a lot more nut of college, don't we. Some girls—but I really am glad for every minute here. Sometimes, I just wish I could go and tell the President how I feel. I bet it would be sort of encouraging, too. It may sound funny, but I think he'd like to know there are a few girls like us who appreciate—"

Our time is flown,
Our time is through,
Folks, I guess it's
Good-night to you!
Good-night! Good-night!
G-O-O-D-N-I-G-H-T-!

You have just heard
"The Campus Calliopes" and the special hour of collegiate fun. Now,
Hurly and Burly have to hurry back to their house
—the girls are making a frantic dash to get in by ten o'clock. I'm sure you have all enjoyed this little glimpse of college life broadcast to you from the Collegiate Studios in Northampton. This ends our program for this evening.

Now, in exactly fifty seconds, you will hear, by special arrangement, the College gongs striking ten o'clock, Eastern Standard Time. Please stand by.

Exactly ten o'clock, Eastern Standard Time.

"GOODNIGHT - To you!"

"The Store Where You Get Your Gym Shoes"

For Twenty-Five Years

☛ We have sold shoes to the girls of Smith College, while they were here and after they had left Alma Mater.

☛ We send shoes all over the country to the girls who left college years ago and those who left but last year.

☛ We send them ANYWHERE on approval, and we suited the girls so well while they were here that they KNOW what we can do, and keep in touch with us year after year.

With a Feeling of Pride

AS you turn the pages of this book you will surely be impressed with its pleasing attractiveness and interest. But, can you imagine the feeling of pride which must come to each member of the YEAR BOOK Staff as she turns those same pages—the result of work in which she has had an important part? ¶ This is the first YEAR BOOK of Smith College in which color has been employed and special congratulations are due Miss Dorothy Harger, Miss Ruth E. Culp, and the members of their efficient Staff, for accomplishing this pleasing innovation. ¶ It has been a real pleasure to work with the 1929 Staff. The interest that was naturally ours was considerably intensified by the spirit of enthusiastic co-operation shown by Miss Harger and her associates. Especial commendation is due those of the Art Staff, whose drawings have given dignity and interest to the pages of the YEAR BOOK.

¶ Truly, the production of such a book has been a real undertaking and we, as Engraver-Printers, cannot help but feel a certain degree of pride in the fact that our Planning Department has been an important factor in aiding the Staff to a realization of their ideals
